Barristers specialising in Commercial and Chancery Law

ENVIRONMENTAL LAW

Members of Chambers advise and act in all aspects of this wide-ranging and complex field, including:

- Environmental protection
- Waste management and landfill
- Environmental Impact Assessments
- Nature Conservation
- Integrated Pollution Prevention and Control
- Agriculture and Fisheries
- Environmental Prosecutions
- EU Environmental legislation

A particular area of specialism is the application of international human rights law to this field. Judicial review proceedings are also undertaken as well as complex nuisance and personal injury claims. Work on behalf of private clients and campaigning groups forms a significant part of Chambers' practice. Pro Bono work is undertaken in appropriate cases. Professional associations include ELF and UKELA.
